The Handbook, like its recent predecessors, relies on a range of contributors especially Adam Gray for his work on assembling candidate nominations and later for producing maps describing the political composition of the newly elected councils.

Ken Leadbeater has compiled and provided commentary on mayoral election results. The Handbook also relies upon his extensive knowledge of councillors to keep track of incumbents, even in areas implementing new boundaries. This skill has been particularly important in a year that marked a step change in the proportion of incumbents defeated.

Staff at the House of Commons Library undertook the arduous task of tracking down accurate figures for registered electorates and the numbers of valid and invalid ballots cast in 2025.

Incorporating the results into the database was performed by Dr. Galina Borisyuk who then produced the Tables for the Handbook and also those located on the Elections Centre website.

We continue to benefit from our association with the University of Exeter and our co-director, Dr. Hannah Bunting. After organising the transportation of the Centre's archive from its former home at Nuffield College to a new base on the Exeter campus she is now facilitating the process of digital migration. Eventually, the Centre's internet presence will move from its old website to one being developed at electionscentre.uk. The year also saw Hannah hosting the annual conference of the Political Studies Association's, 'Elections, Public Opinion and Parties' group at Exeter University. Despite her extensive conference responsibilities she still managed to host the celebrations that marked the 40th anniversary of the Elections Centre.

Introduction

Reform UK achieved one of the most remarkable local election performances of the post-war era, gaining almost 700 seats, majority control of ten councils, and two of the combined authority mayors.

Fielding a record number of candidates, more than either of the two main parties, there was always a risk that the party might repeat its 2024 general election performance - winning votes but not seats.

But, by acquiring the support of such a large fraction of discontented voters, Reform this time benefitted from the operation of the first past the post voting system. Local voters turned their backs on both traditional two parties, each of which lost two-thirds of the seats being defended. Conservative and Labour incumbents alike took a pounding.

Elsewhere, the Liberal Democrats built on their success of last year, running a well-targeted campaign and taking control of three more councils. The twin forces of Reform and Liberal Democrats combined to deprive the Conservatives of majorities in all of their councils.

Labour's support base collapsed. Local, mayoral and the parliamentary by-election results confirmed that this is the worst start for any UK government elected with a landslide majority, something council by-election losses before May had already shown. Labour's so-called 'loveless landslide' is in danger of disappearing after a single Parliament.

The consequences of electoral turmoil were revealed from our annual exercise of estimating a National Equivalent Vote (NEV) for The Sunday Times. This was based on a comprehensive analysis of 4.2 million votes cast across 1,399 wards and county divisions (the two missing results were countermanded elections). These results were compared against both the 2021 equivalent local elections and also with the 2024 parliamentary voting in the same areas.

Reform finished ahead with an estimated 32%, easily the best ever performance by a third party and ten percentage points higher than UKIP achieved in 2013, its best year. Critically, it was that larger level of support where our first past the post voting system delivers a winner's bonus.

Both Labour and Conservatives posted their lowest shares across the forty years we have compiled these estimates.

Labour just scraped into second place with 19%, fifteen points lower than it achieved last year and three points lower than it scored when undergoing a dramatic collapse in 2009.

The Conservatives crashed to just 18%. Previously, the Conservative record low was 25% when John Major's government in 1995 was in freefall under the relentless attack from Blair's New Labour.

Completing the picture, the NEV put the Liberal Democrats on 16% with the Greens unchanged from the general election on 7%.

There were enough clues emerging from the overnight counts to suggest that Reform was delivering a shock to the two-party system. First to be reported were some of the 94 council by-elections taking place. When those contests were fully declared Reform had gained a further 28 seats, many from Labour.

Northumberland was the only council to count all of its votes overnight. It did not take long to declare what would be the first of Reform's 23 gains, almost equal misery befalling Conservative and Labour incumbents.

Staffordshire reported results from Tamworth where Reform swept the board. Broxbourne in Hertfordshire, often a Conservative monopoly, showed Reform breaking the stranglehold.

Mayoral races in Doncaster, North Tyneside and the West of England, revealed Labour winning unconvincingly. Ros Jones, Doncaster's re-elected mayor, gave a speech laden with warning for the government, knowing that Friday's count of council seats would see Reform take overall control and Labour lose the only authority it was defending. This combination of Labour mayor and Reform council in Doncaster is just one of the many narratives from local government that will play out in the months ahead.

The Reform leadership, now witnessing a surging in electoral support, were torn between attending the battle for Runcorn & Helsby, Labour's 49th safest parliamentary seat, and the opportunity to elect the party's first mayor in Greater Lincolnshire where ex-Conservative MP, Andrea Jenkyns was a clear front-runner. The margin of her victory proved to be the largest of all six of the elected mayors, including her colleague Luke Campbell's later success in Hull and East Yorkshire.

The early local election results demonstrated that the threshold for winning, the winner's vote share, was tumbling. Nominations showed an average of five candidates contesting each vacancy. In a majority of cases voters had at least four candidates from mainstream parties on their ballot paper.

The elections did establish a new record; the average winner's share falling to just 40.7%, down four points from the previous record in 2013.

As with all averages there are interesting stories in the distribution. There were 75 candidates that were elected with less than 30% of the vote. Cornwall's Truro Moresk & Trehaverne division is an extreme example with the Liberal Democrat winner, Steven Webb, elected with just 19% of the vote over Simon Rogers for Reform on 17%. The first five candidates were separated by 110 votes.

A further 140 councillors won their seats with support from less than a third of voters. Some of these new councillors will no doubt be delighted. Others, persuaded to stand as 'paper' candidates, now face the choice of a four-year term of office or a rapid exit.

This pattern of low vote share for victors at the ward level contributed to a skewed relationship between seats and votes at the council level.

Reform were well and truly on the right side of this equation, with a higher share of seats than votes in 15 of the 23 councils. Leading the way was Staffordshire where a 41% vote share translated into 49 seats and a 79% share. The county has oscillated between Conservative and Labour control since 1973 but no longer.

A winner's bonus for Reform of more than a 25-point gap between votes and seats was recorded in a further eight councils, all of which will now be under the party's administration. In some cases, including Derbyshire, Lancashire and Nottinghamshire, Reform has broken the duopoly of Labour and Conservatives running county government.

Durham sees Labour relegated from top spot, while both Kent and Lincolnshire's results mean long periods of Conservative council control have come to an end.

Addressing the issue of longevity in party control requires mention of Buckinghamshire. As county then unitary council, the authority remained blue, even during the Conservative capitulation of 1993. An uninterrupted sequence of fifty-two years came to an end when the party finished with 48 seats, one short of an overall majority. Multiple member wards provide examples where Conservative candidates lost by slim margins, two-member wards electing one Conservative but a second councillor from a rival party.

The Liberal Democrats have long experience in battling the voting system. This was evident in the three counties where they gained overall control for the first time, Cambridgeshire, Oxfordshire and Shropshire, and a fourth, Gloucestershire, where it fell short of the winning post by just one seat. In all four cases, Liberal Democrat seat share exceeded votes by a 20+ percentage point margin. Cambridgeshire provides a fascinating example of effective vote distribution. Liberal Democrats, Conservative and Reform vote shares were within four percentage points of one another, but the parties won 31, 10 and 10 seats respectively. The confluence of Liberal Democrat success and Conservative failure means that one now overtakes the other in terms of councils controlled. Previously, it was the mid-1990s when this occurred.

If Reform and the Liberal Democrats were advantaged by the electoral system, it was Conservative and Labour, for so long on the right side of seat distributions, that suffered falling vote shares which led to dramatic seat losses.

In eleven authorities, the two main parties each registered their lowest ever vote shares in 52 years. In Kent, the Conservative party won 63% of the vote in 1977; this year its share has fallen to 22%. Labour's vote across Durham hit the same high level in both 1997 and 2001 but collapsed to 20% this May. In both cases, the damage was inflicted by Reform. The Greens made a net gain of 44 seats with the party polling best in North Northamptonshire (notably in the Kettering area where water pollution of the river Ise is an issue), Gloucestershire (Stroud and Forest of Dean) and Worcestershire (Worcester and Malvern Hills). But in none of these councils have the Greens reached double-digit seat totals. And in the race for West of England mayor, regarded as an opportunity, candidate Mary Page was relegated into third place by Reform's Arron Banks.

The May elections have changed the balance of local government. Many experienced councillors, Conservative and Labour, lost their seats and are replaced by opponents from Reform and the Liberal Democrats, many of whom might have little previous political experience.

Reform now adds local government to its parliamentary presence. As these new councillors and mayors govern, public scrutiny of the party will increase. In five authorities under no overall control where Reform is the largest party, the process of forming administrations will bring insights into how local rather than the national parties interact with one another.

There is, of course, great interest in the consequences of these elections for the two main parties.

Kemi Badenoch's apology to defeated Conservative councillors was made knowing that many of them believe it is the national party's period in government that brought about what may be the end of their local political careers.

Labour faces the challenge of all parties in government, but it has happened much sooner than they or anyone else would have imagined. This cycle of local elections, coming as it did after an abysmal performance in 2021, should have seen the party gaining, not losing seats.

The 2026 local elections present an existential threat to Labour if it fails to settle its failing relationship with the electorate. There are the authorities whose elections were postponed and where Reform and the Liberal Democrats can inflict yet more damage. Boundary changes for 20 of the metropolitan boroughs and unitary councils require whole council elections with many more Labour seats therefore at stake. London boroughs too may not deliver the strong cohort of Labour councillors as in past elections, particularly when there continues to be strong disagreement over the policy directions the national party is pursuing.

Table 3 shows the overall distribution of votes and seats with Reform emerging as the clear winner, capturing 1.3 million votes, a 31% share of the 4.2 million votes cast overall. Reform contested 1,395 wards, equal to 99.6% of those available. In terms of seats, the party fought 1,630 seats, and won 680, or 41.4% of them, leading to a 10-point advantage of seats over vote share.

The scale of Reform's dominance is reflected in its lead over the second-placed Conservatives, traditionally the strongest party in the county and former county areas. It polled under a million votes (23%) and won fewer than one in five seats.

The Conservatives suffered from a relatively poor vote distribution, which becomes clearer when a comparison is made with the Liberal Democrats who polled 17% of the votes, a quarter of a million fewer than the Conservatives, but won 22.5% of the seats.

Labour, still in its first year of government following a parliamentary electoral landslide, finished a distant fourth, receiving just over one in eight votes and winning under a hundred seats. Its seats to vote ratio was worse than that experienced by the fifth-placed Greens. It contested under three-quarter of the available seats, polled less than one in ten votes but won 79 seats (19 fewer than Labour), 5% of the total.

Table 4 shows that more than 12 million electors were registered with over four million valid ballots recorded, a turnout of 34.4%. Four years before, the turnout in the county elections was 36.1% but the postponement of some elections make broad comparisons difficult. That said, for the 14 counties with elections in both 2021 and 2025, turnout was down in eleven and up in three. In places where turnout increased in 2025, Kent, Lincolnshire and Staffordshire, the increase did not exceed one percentage point.

No wards went uncontested, a fact hardly surprising given an average of five candidates for each vacancy. The proportion of women candidates is broadly in line with the recent trend but women as a percentage of all councillors elected in 2025 shows a modest fall. In 2021, women comprised 29.2% of those elected to county council seats but only 24.7% this time around. The figures for unitary councils are, however, broadly the same across the electoral cycle.

The proportion of incumbents relative to seat numbers seeking re-election was only slightly down on the equivalent elections in 2021 (in the counties 72% in 2021 and 68% in 2025) but the fate of those incumbents was markedly different. In 2021, roughly eight in ten incumbents was successfully re-elected; the equivalent figure in 2025 is 48.8% - less than half. The casualty rate amongst those seeking re-election had a dramatic effect on the nature of the new cohort of councillors selected in 2025. Returning councillors this year accounted for just 36.7% of all councillors; four years before the comparable figure was 57.8% and higher still for the county and unitary councils. This reduction of experienced councillors is without parallel and reflects the erosion of the electoral base of both major parties and their replacement by Reform, Liberal Democrats and Greens.

Using the Handbook

In 2025 there were elections for a total of 23 local authorities across England. These comprised, 14 County councils, 8 unitary (formerly county) councils and a single metropolitan borough council. In addition, there were six mayoral elections fought under first past the post. Four of these (Cambridgeshire & Peterborough; Greater Lincolnshire, Hull & East Yorkshire, West of England) were for Combined Authority mayors. Doncaster and North Tyneside were local authority based mayors.

Elections were postponed for seven counties pending local government re-structuring (East Sussex, Essex, Hampshire, Norfolk, Suffolk, Surrey and West Sussex). Two unitary council areas, Isle of Wight and Thurrock, also saw elections postponed.

There were division/ward boundary changes in 11 authorities with elections – five counties (Gloucestershire, Oxfordshire, Staffordshire and Worcestershire) and six unitary authorities (Buckinghamshire, Durham, North Northamptonshire, Northumberland, Shropshire and West Northamptonshire).

Following the Introduction a section on aggregate statistics for each local authority appears. Against the local authority name is the aggregate percentage turnout. The overall vote share and change in vote appears, together with the number of candidates appearing for seven 'party' categories. The Table reports on the number of seats won for each category.

The results sections cover respectively the county and then unitary councils with Doncaster metropolitan borough at the end. Within these categories councils are organised alphabetically, with each two-tier county organised in order of its district councils .

Division/ward results are reported in name order. The figure in brackets adjacent to the ward name is the local electorate for the 2025 election as provided to us by the local authority.

Two scheduled elections were countermanded because of the death of a candidate. Both North Northamptonshire's Higham Ferrers and Nottinghamshire's Mansfield North divisions held the postponed elections on June 12th.

Candidates are listed in descending order of vote within each ward. Surname and initials are used; 'Ms.' after a candidate's name indicates a woman; and the symbol '' indicates that the candidate was a sitting councillor, although not necessarily for the ward contested for previously. Two points should be noted. First, it is sometimes difficult to establish from someone's name whether they are a man or a woman. Although lists of forenames are consulted there are some that remain unidentified or ambiguous. It is also difficult sometimes to keep track of incumbent councillors seeking re-election although Kenneth Leadbeater has helped considerably in making these data as accurate as possible.

'Vote' is the number of electors who supported each candidate and 'Share' the proportion of the total number who cast a valid ballot supporting each candidate. The process of rounding means that shares do not necessarily sum to 100. In the case of multi-member wards where more than one vacancy was filled we have used the vote of each party's best placed candidate in order to calculate total vote and hence party shares. Where a candidate(s) was returned unopposed then either '0' or '0.0' are used in the fields for vote, share and turnout. Below the list of candidates is a further line of data. First, we print the party whose candidate finished top of the poll at the previous election – note: the year may vary according to the particular electoral cycle for that ward. In the case of redrawn boundaries this feature is left blank.

Next, is recorded the percentage turnout. Turnout is the proportion of the electorate that cast valid ballots at the election. In most cases turnout is that given by the local Electoral Administrator and has thus been calculated knowing the number of valid ballot papers issued. In a very small number of cases we have ourselves calculated turnout from the available information. The figure to the right of the turnout represents the percentage lead of the winning party over the second placed party rounded to one decimal place. The process of rounding means that in some cases the percentage majority may not be the same as the winning party's vote share minus the second-placed party's share.

Mayoral Elections

Six mayoral elections took place on 1 May 2025.

Elections for the combined authority mayors of Cambridgeshire and Peterborough and for the West of England and for the directly elected mayors of Doncaster City and North Tyneside Borough had taken place previously in 2021.

In 2025, Labour narrowly held the mayoralities in the West of England, Doncaster and North Tyneside. Conservatives gained the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough mayoralty from Labour.

Elections also took place for the first time for the new combined authority mayors of Greater Lincolnshire and Hull and East Yorkshire. Both were won by Reform UK.

The Elections Act 2022 had introduced first-past-the-post elections in place of the supplementary vote system (SV). Back in 2021, the Labour mayor in North Tyneside was elected with more than 50% of the vote, the Labour mayors in Doncaster and West of England were ahead on the first count, but needed transfers from the second count to secure 50% of the vote and achieve election. The Conservative candidate in Cambridgeshire and Peterborough had been ahead on the first count, but transfers from the Lib Dem in the second count had been sufficient to secure a Labour victory. So Labour were defending all four continuing mayoralities.

Doncaster and North Tyneside are among the 13 legacy directly elected council mayors, covering 5 London Boroughs, 3 Metropolitan Districts, 3 Unitary Authorities and 2 Shire Districts (Mansfield and Watford). The Government issued a ministerial statement on 24 June 2025, indicating that they propose to accept the continuation of these 13 legacy directly elected council mayors, while introducing measures to ensure a more consistent approach by not facilitating the creation of new ones. The directly elected mayors of Mansfield and Watford may disappear with the upcoming local government reorganisation (cf. Copeland in 2023).

Back in 2021, Reform UK had not been a significant electoral force. They had only contested the Doncaster mayoralty, where they had achieved just 1.6% of the vote. This year, 2025, Reform UK emerged as the runners up in all four continuing mayoral elections, reducing the Labour majorities to West of England (2.9%), Doncaster (1.0%) and North Tyneside (0.8%). In Cambridgeshire and Peterborough, where Labour had been second behind the Conservatives after the first count in 2021, they now fell into third place behind Reform UK, who were 5.0% behind the Conservatives.

Reform UK had comfortable wins for the two new mayoral positions, ending up 16% ahead of the Conservatives in Greater Lincolnshire and 8.1% ahead of the Liberal Democrats in Hull and East Yorkshire.

Table 1 shows the results for the each of the six contests.

Table 2 provides a more detailed picture of the results. The combined authority mayoralty election results are broken down by each individual local authority covered by the mayor.

With the emergence of Reform UK as a new electoral force in 2025, the traditional calculation of swings has become less meaningful. Consequently Table 2 shows the change in vote share for each party across the six contests and all the subsidiary local authorities, when compared with the first count results in 2021.

Although Greater Lincolnshire and Hull and East Yorkshire were new contests, Police and Crime Commissioner elections had taken place in Humberside and Lincolnshire in 2021, providing a basis for comparison.

Turnout hovered around 30% for all six contests, varying from 33.8% in North Tyneside to 29.8% in Hull and East Yorkshire. The highest local authority turnout was in Cambridge (38.4%), whilst the lowest was in North East Lincolnshire (23.9%).

Only one incumbent mayor sought re-election, Ros Jones in Doncaster, and she was successful.

The six contests attracted 42 candidates, with Labour, Conservatives, Reform UK, Lib Dems and the Green Party contesting all six. The Yorkshire Party contested Doncaster and Hull and East Yorkshire. Lincolnshire Independents contested Greater Lincolnshire. There were also 5 Independents and 4 candidates from minor parties. Doncaster attracted no less than 12 candidates, including 2 Independents and all 4 minor party candidates.

Fifteen of the 42 candidates were female, Both Labour and the Green Party fielded 5 female candidates for the six contests, whilst the other major parties fielded 1 candidate each, together with 1 Lincolnshire Independent and 1 Independent.

Four of the 6 mayors elected were female – Andrea Jenkyns (Reform UK) in Greater Lincolnshire and 3 Labour mayors, Helen Godwin (West of England), Ros Jones (Doncaster) and Karen Clark (North Tyneside).
